Sports & Entertainment

The firm represents a broad range of entertainment and sports clients. These specialized interests benefit from the extensive business experience of our various practice groups.

The representation of our sports clients includes a broad range of commercial transactions and legal issues.

We have been involved in the preparation of executive employment agreements, negotiation of player and coaching contracts, arbitration of disputed contract issues, negotiation and preparation of sports arena use agreements, negotiation of network and Cobb Television agreements, luxury box lease and license agreements, college football bowl agreements with athletic conferences, representation in general labor matters, trademark licensing and related matters, negotiation and preparation of sponsorship and advertising agreements, advice regarding federal, state, and local taxes, preparation of contracts related to ticketing operations and negotiation, preparation of television and radio broadcast agreements and endorsement and autograph agreements. Our team of experienced litigators also has handled numerous litigation matters involving sports teams, entertainers, facilities, sponsors and broadcasts, each involving a wide range of sports law issues.

We also have significant experience in the representation of athletes and entertainers for their personal and family legal needs, including financial planning, asset protection, personal injury, commercial and business endeavors, real estate transactions, estate planning, family and marital law, and charitable foundation relationships.
