

Volusia County to Hold Special Meeting on Potential Development Moratorium

Article

Lowndes

01.13.2025

The Volusia County Council will convene on Tuesday, January 14, 2025, to discuss a potential development moratorium to address flooding issues in the County. The meeting will begin at 4 p.m. in the County Council Chambers at the Thomas C. Kelly Administration Center, 123 W. Indiana Ave., DeLand, FL.

Members of the public are invited to attend the meeting in person and provide their comments. Alternatively, members of the public can submit their comments via email to publicparticipation@volusia.org by 4 p.m. today, Monday, January 13, 2025.

The meeting will also be livestreamed at www.volusia.org and on the County's YouTube channel.

If you have additional questions regarding the moratorium or any real property rights, land use, zoning, and business matters, please contact the Lowndes Land Use Team.

Related Attorneys

Tara L. Tedrow

Sean Klein

Related Expertise

Land Use & Zoning

Real Estate

Real Estate Development